

CERVICAL CANCER SYMPTOMS

Changes to cervical cells do not usually cause any symptoms. This is why regular Cervical Screening Tests are so important (recommended every 5 years). If cervical cell changes develop into cervical cancer, the most common symptoms include:

Menstrual irregularities such as bleeding between periods, longer and heavier periods, and bleeding after menopause

Unusual vaginal discharge

Excessive tiredness or fatigue

Bleeding and pain during/after sexual intercourse

Leg pain or swelling

Lower back pain

