

VAGINAL CANCER SYMPTOMS

Vaginal cancer often doesn't cause early symptoms, but may be found during a Cervical Screening Test. Below are some of the key symptoms that might indicate vaginal cancer. It's critical that women consult a doctor if they experience any of these symptoms.

Appearance of a lump in the vagina

Frequent urge to urinate or blood in urine

Vaginal bleeding after intercourse

Pain and discomfort in the pelvic area

Rectal pain

Bloody vaginal discharge (unrelated to menstruation)
